Introduction

Employee Benefit Research Institute (EBRI) of Washington, D.C., commissioned The Gallup Organization, Inc. of Princeton, New Jersey to conduct a national public opinion study regarding consumer behavior and attitudes about health insurance programs. EBRI was responsible for suggesting subject areas and Gallup was responsible for ensuring that questions were properly asked and without bias.

During November 1991, 1,001 Americans age 18 and older across the continental United States were contacted by telephone from randomly generated telephone lists. Random lists eliminate bias against newly listed and unlisted telephone numbers. Gallup uses a three-callback methodology in which up to three calls are made to the same telephone number in order to eliminate bias in favor of those easy to reach by telephone.

As part of Gallup's quality-control procedures, ten percent (10%) of all interviews are checked by supervisory personnel to ensure that data is accurate and properly procured. All interviews are conducted in Gallup's communication facility by professionally trained interviewers under exclusive employment of The Gallup Organization.

The final results presented in this report have been statistically weighted by sex, race, education, age and region to be proportional to the population of individuals age 18 and older across the continental United States.

The maximum expected error range at the 95% confidence level for a study of 1,001 respondents is $\pm 3.1\%$. Stated more simply, if 100 different samples of 1,001 persons each were randomly chosen from the population, 95 times out of 100 the total results obtained would vary no more than ± 3.1 percentage points from the results that would be obtained if the entire population were surveyed. The maximum expected statistical error range at the 95% level of confidence is given in the following table:
