Introduction and Methodology

The Employee Benefit Research Institute (EBRI) of Washington, D.C., commissioned The Gallup Organization, Inc. of Princeton, New Jersey to conduct a national public opinion study on employee attitudes toward retirement and investment plans. EBRI was responsible for suggesting subject areas and Gallup was responsible for ensuring that questions were properly asked and were without bias.

During January 1993, 1,000 Americans age 18 or older across the continental United States were contacted by telephone from randomly generated telephone lists. Random lists eliminate bias against newly listed and unlisted telephone numbers. Gallup uses a three-callback methodology in which up to three calls are made to the same telephone number in order to eliminate bias in favor of those individuals easy to reach by telephone.

As part of Gallup's quality-control procedures, ten percent (10%) of all interviews are checked by supervisory personnel to ensure that data is accurate and properly procured. All interviews are conducted in Gallup's communication facility by professionally trained interviewers under exclusive employment of The Gallup Organization.

EBRI then analyzed the results of respondents that classified themselves as employed (682 respondents). The final results presented in this report have been statistically weighted by gender, race, education, age, and region to be proportional to the population of individuals age 18-65 across the continental United States.

The maximum expected error range at the 95% confidence level for a study of 682 respondents is ±3.8%. Stated more simply, if 100 different samples of 1,000 persons each were randomly chosen from the population, 95 times out of 100 the total results obtained would vary no more than ±3.8 percentage points from the results that would be obtained if the entire population were surveyed. The maximum expected statistical error range at the 95% level of confidence is given in the following table:
