Now I'd like to talk about something a little different. Since we are living in the last decade of the 20th century, some people have begun to discuss the times we have lived through and what is in store for us in the future. I'd like to ask you a few questions about that. Let's start by looking toward the year 2000.

19. Overall, when you think ahead to the year 2000, do you think the world will be in better shape than today, worse shape, or about the same?

1/54

22. Compared to the 20th century, do you think the 21st century will have:

23. As you may know, some scientists and teachers say that the 21st century will begin in the year 2001, while other people say it will begin in the year 2000. How about you -- do you think the 21st century will begin in the year 2000 or in the year 2001?

24. Do you think you will do something special on New Year's Eve of [INSERT ONE: 1999/2000/the year most of your friends will celebrate as the start of the 21st century] which will be different from what you have usually done on previous New Year's Eves?

1/63

25. Sometimes it seems to many people that decades and centuries really begin when major events happen. People say that Pearl Harbor was the start of the 1940s, for example, or that the 1960s began with the Kennedy assassination, or Woodstock, or the day that civil rights bills became law. If you had to pick one single event which signalled the beginning of the 1990s, what would you choose?
